Medium-term Management Policy and Value Creation Model

Aiming for growth by handling more next-generation automobiles

There is no doubt that sales of next-generation vehicles will grow even faster as countries take actions to achieve a low carbon society. We can expect to see more sales of hybrid, electric, plug-in hybrid, fuel cell, clean diesel, compressed natural gas and other types of automobiles.

Clearly, more sales also mean a larger volume of these next-generation vehicles on the secondary market.

Japanese government targets for automobile use in 2020 and 2030

Medium-term Management Policy and Value Creation Model

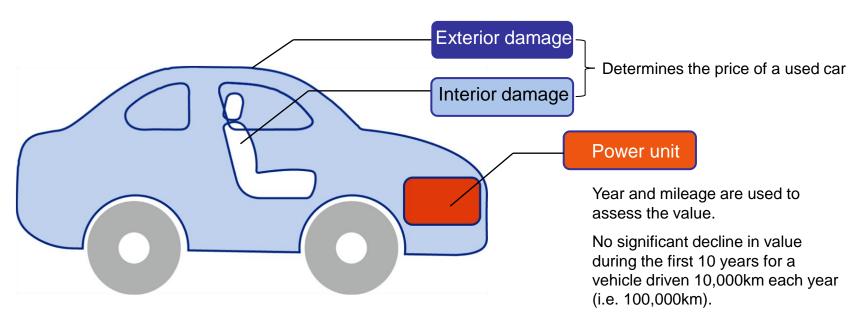

Aiming for growth by handling more next-generation automobiles

There are currently many uncertainties about the numbers of next-generation vehicles on the road and the impact of these vehicles on Japan's used car market.

Next-generation vehicles use a variety of power sources. The value of the power unit generally changes very little during a vehicle's first 10 years. The amount of interior and exterior damage will have the greatest effect on the price of next-generation used cars.

This is why we believe that our strategy for conventional vehicles will be effective for the future as well when many more next-generation vehicles are on the road.

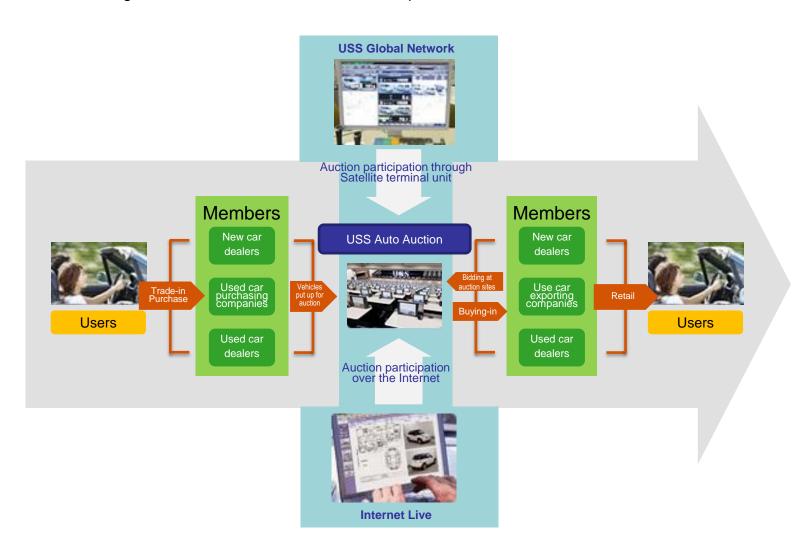

Medium-term Management Policy and Value Creation Model

Automobile auctions for the future automobile market

Selling a next-generation vehicle from one individual to another is difficult for a number of reasons. Complexity of procedures, uncertainty about quality and high prices are three examples of barriers to these transactions. As a result, we believe that most sales of used next-generation vehicles will be between companies that use the automobile auction infrastructure.

Medium-term Management Policy and Value Creation Model

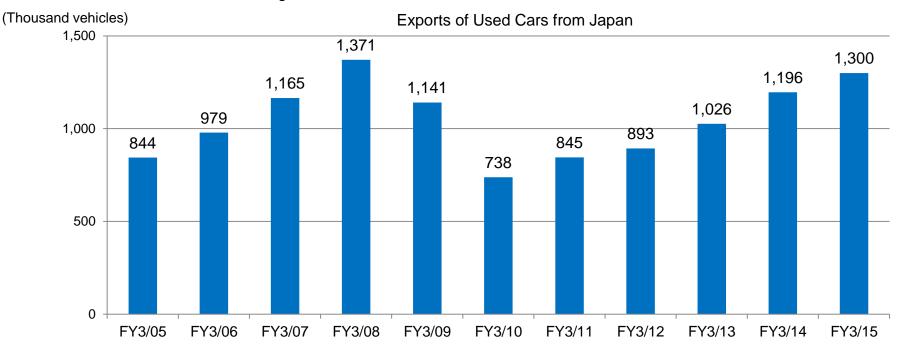

The growing importance of Japan's used car exports

Used car exports from Japan fell sharply during the global financial crisis. Since this downturn, the volume of these exports has been climbing because of strong demand in emerging countries despite the effects of import restrictions in Russia and some other countries.

There are no prospects for significant growth of Japan's used car market. Consequently, the used car export market will probably remain a major source of support for the automobile auction market.

In addition, import duties on used vehicles may be eliminated after ratification of the TPP agreement. Purchase prices of used vehicles are also likely to increase as exports get a boost. Furthermore, the vehicle replacement cycle can also be expected shorten as consumers shift to new-generation vehicles.

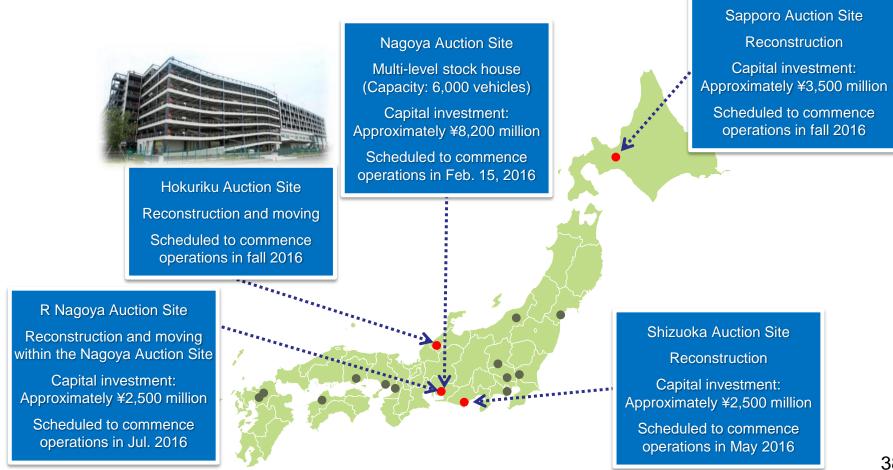

Strategic Objectives Based on Medium-term Management Policy

Creating more value for members primarily by using auction sites

Market conditions for used cars and automobile auctions will change as people buy more next-generation vehicles, Japan's used car exports increase and other events take place. USS will respond with flexibility to these changes while continuing to make investments in its nationwide network of auction sites.

Our goal is the number-one market share by a wide margin as we offer members even more convenience by creating the best automobile auction facilities in each region of Japan.

Strategic Objectives Based on Medium-term Management Policy

Pricing strategy

- ➤ Use a fee rebate system created for each auction site in order to increase the number of vehicles consigned at high-volume sites
- ➤ In July, raised the external successful bid fee by 1,000 yen for both satellite TV and Internet auction participants (In FY3/16, expected to raise fee income by 566 million yen between July 2015 and March 2016)
- ➤ In July, established a flat 10,000 yen fee for negotiated purchases at all 17 auction sites (In FY3/16, expected to raise fee income by 420 million yen between July 2015 and March 2016)

Strategic Objectives Based on Medium-term Management Policy

Communication network strategy

➤ The Internet CIS data service and USS Logistics International Service Co., Ltd. jointly operate a used vehicle export support site. Plans call for expanding the range of services to include transaction support service, logistics support service and other services.
